

Dr. Martín-J. Sepúlveda Receives 2010 Global Leadership in Corporate Health Award

Dr. Martín-J. Sepúlveda the 2010 Global Leadership in Corporate Health Award recipient

Martín-J. Sepúlveda, MD, is the recipient of the 2010 Global Leadership in Corporate Health Award jointly awarded by the American College of Occupational and Environmental Medicine and the National Business Group on Health at the Business Group's 24th National Conference on Health, Productivity, and Human Capital. This award acknowledges his achievements as a leader in innovations in workplace health and employee well-being.

Dr. Sepúlveda is recognized as a leader in this field as evidenced by his external, global recognition of IBM's innovations in workplace health, his extramural appointments on scientific advisory boards, Institute of Medicine work groups, professional and employer associations and numerous articles on employee health.

Martín Sepúlveda, M.D., FACP, FACOEM is an IBM Fellow and the Vice President of Integrated Health Services for the IBM Corporation. He leads a global shared services organization providing global solutions to employee well being and health benefits business requirements. Dr. Sepúlveda is a graduate of Yale University and the Harvard Medical School, Harvard University. He trained in the Epidemic Intelligence Service of the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention, and completed residencies in internal medicine at the University of California-San Francisco Hospitals and Clinics, and in occupational medicine at the National Institute of Occupational Safety & Health. He also completed a fellowship in internal medicine at the University of Iowa Hospitals and Clinics. He is board certified and holds the rank of fellow in both the American College of Physicians (internal medicine) and the American College of Occupational & Environmental Medicine (occupational medicine).

Nominations for the Global Leadership in Corporate Health Award are being accepted until April 29, 2011. For more information, visit www.acoem.org/globalleadershipaward.aspx.

About ACOEM

The American College of Occupational and Environmental Medicine (ACOEM) represents nearly 5,000 physicians specializing in occupational and environmental medicine. Founded in 1916, ACOEM is the nation's largest medical society dedicated to promoting the health of workers through preventive medicine, clinical care, disability management, research, and education. For more information, visit www.acoem.org.

About the National Business Group on Health

The National Business Group on Health is the nation's only non-profit organization devoted exclusively to representing large employers' perspective on national health policy issues and providing practical solutions to its members' most important health care problems. For more information, visit www.businessgrouphealth.org.