

A New Opportunity for ACOEM's Resident Members!

Complimentary Membership to three (3) of ACOEM's Special Interest Sections only for Resident Members!

See below for descriptions of the Sections...

Active participation in Special Interest Sections is a significant benefit of ACOEM membership. The Sections are the source of many of the innovative activities of the College, and they provide leadership and networking opportunities for members. Sections are particularly important for Residents and other younger members of the College.

- (1) The Residents and Recent Graduates Special Interest Section
- (2) Your Choice! _____
- (3) Your Choice! _____

"Join us!"

ACOEM's Special Interest Sections

Academic Occupational Medicine

Covers issues pertinent to occupational and environmental medicine education as well as promoting education and training of physicians who practice OEM.

Corporate Medicine

For corporate occupational health directors and others whose practice or main interest is in corporate medicine.

Environmental Health

This section will conduct educational activities to address environmental health issues, and will coordinate its activities with other environmental health organizations and government agencies such as the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency (EPA).

Federal & Military Occupational and Environmental Medicine

Share information and discuss areas of mutual concern and interest among members who serve in, or are partnered with, the military, public health service, or federal government.

Health & Productivity

For physicians with an interest in guidelines for the assessment and evaluation of measurements of productivity and systems for tracking such measurements in the workplace.

History and Archives

Explores the history of occupational and environmental medicine and the forces that shaped it; documents the history of ACOEM and its component societies; & educates the profession on the history and traditions of OEM.

International Occupational Medicine

This section serves as a focal point for health care professionals desiring information on OEM around the world.

Medical Center Occupational Health

Provides opportunities for participation in educational sessions, open forums, and Internet guideline updates for those with a particular interest in the health and safety of health care facility employees.

Medical Review Officers

Medical Review Officers who are interested in current topics in occupational and environmental medicine.

Occupational Physicians and Physician Assistants

Encourages use of a team concept between the physician and physician assistant in occupational and environmental medicine.

Pharmaceutical Industry

Promotes dialogue pertaining to the occupational and preventive health issues of the pharmaceutical industry.

Private Practice in Occupational Medicine

Representative voice of ACOEM physicians who are involved in the frontline practice of clinical occupational and environmental medicine.

Public Safety Medicine

Focuses on occupational & environmental concerns regarding fire, police, correction officers, crossing guards, and other public safety professionals.

Residents & Recent Graduates

An exchange forum for residents or recent graduates of occupational medicine residency and fellowship programs. FREE for Residents!

Transportation

Covers issues related to the health and safety of individuals in various transportation industries.

Underserved Occupational Populations

Forum for those interested in special occupational health problems experienced by underserved populations such as migrant workers, off-shore commercial fisherman, loggers, hospitality workers, etc.

Work Fitness & Disability

Physicians with special interests in disability prevention and management, return-to-work planning, as well as accurate work fitness and disability/impairment determinations.

The American College of Occupational and Environmental Medicine

25 Northwest Point Blvd, Suite 700 | Elk Grove Village, IL 60007 | 847-818-1800 | 847-818-8347 fax
www.acoem.org | memberinfo@acoem.org